

Special Endorsements

I feel privileged to be a member of the International Church Council Committee headed by Dr. Jay Grimstead. This man of God has labored untiringly in the defense of the inerrancy of the Bible and to reestablish evangelical Christianity as the moral foundation of our nation since 1977 when he was a prime mover in founding the International Council on Biblical Inerrancy. This current, united effort of Christian leaders to reestablish the historic, biblical standards of doctrine for the Body of Christ in the 21st Century has my full support.

Dr. Duane T. Gish, Ph.D.

Senior Vice President, Institute for Creation Research

I am happy to endorse the International Church Council under the leadership of Dr. Jay Grimstead, for the efforts that they have made for many years for the defense of the infallibility of the Scriptures and the returning of the Church to its historical orthodoxy. In the midst of the massive theological confusion and relativism of our time, I think the International Church Council is a much-needed organization for our day.

MISSION STATEMENT

“To establish for the 21ST century a biblical-theological standard of doctrine for the Body of Christ in 80 targeted countries, consistent with the mainstream theology of the first 20 centuries.”

Purpose and Plans

The International Church Council Project of the Coalition on Revival is a united effort of theologians and Christian leaders from multiple denominations to clarify and reaffirm historic, biblical doctrines that are presently being undermined by false teaching and outright heresy. Unless these issues are discussed, clarified and reaffirmed, the Church is in danger of losing its ability to fulfill the Great Commission, bring forth healthy spiritual children and influence our dying societies with its salt and light. To bring to light the historic, orthodox, biblical position on these foundational issues, twenty-two papers have been written by the International Church Council Committee to be discussed in a forum of dignified, scholarly debate in eighty targeted countries the following five years. In each of those countries, a National Council on Theology is to be formed to host a National Theological Consultation wherein each of these papers and issues is to be discussed. During August of 2012 it is planned that a global church council will meet, modeled after the early ecumenical councils (Nicea in 325, etc.) to discuss these matters at an international level with representatives from all eighty countries and every denomination and Christian organization which wishes to participate.

An Invitation to Participate / Requirements

Dear Christian leader, pastor, teacher, missionary or theologian,

We encourage you to ask God in prayer if you are to participate officially in this global dialogue as a member of your country's National Council on Theology. Christian leaders in good standing with their churches, denominations, organizations, schools and mission agencies are invited to volunteer to be on the National Council on Theology from their own country other than from the United States (and such Christian leaders from the United States may volunteer to be on the State Council on Theology of their own state within the U.S.) if they meet these qualifications:

1. They hold some position of respect and recognition within their own denomination, church, association, organization, school, or mission agency and have permission to officially represent their organization to their country's National Council on Theology or to their State Council on Theology (U.S.).
2. They are in hearty agreement with the ICBI Chicago Statements on Biblical Inerrancy and Hermeneutics, and with the 42 Articles on Historic Christian Doctrine (a generic summary of 2,000 years of mainstream theology). These documents can be seen and downloaded from our website at www.ChurchCouncil.org.
3. They are committed to personally live a holy life of obedience to Christ's commands in the Bible, and are willing to mutually hold each other accountable according to Matthew 18, to live in obedience to the Bible in every area of life.

A twelve-member National Council on Theology is proposed for each of these countries. The councils will function as official liaisons between their countries and the International Church Council Project Steering Committee. Each council is to stage a National Consultation on Theology to discuss the affirmations and denials of all twenty-two theological documents. Attempts are to be made to reach consensus on all twenty-two issue documents. Within six months after their consultations, they are to offer to hold a National Dialogue and Debate with any theological opponents within their countries, which dialogues should be media events if they occur. Each country should send representatives to the global church council in 2012.

Citizens of countries not listed are welcome to contact the ICCP office in order to participate.
